

School welcomes tradition

Handing over computer equipment to visitors from Gambia, left to right - Timothy Martin-Harvey, 11, Rubinder Bahra, 11, Headteacher Ajjallow Sarr, Chairman of Wyce Ebrima Sarr and Shanae Ennis-Melhado, 11

Visitors say thank you to pupils for hi-tech gift

Pupils at a Wolverhampton school had a visit from a very special visitor who travelled from Africa to say a personal thank you.

Mr Ebrima Sarr, known as EK, and his wife Haji Jallow Sarr, called into Woodfield Avenue Junior School yesterday to thank youngsters for donating their old computers to a school in the Gambia. The couple are in England for a month to raise money for the Wednesbury-based Wonder Years Centre of Excellence, which is working in Medina village. Wolverhampton resident, Bernard Harris, who works for the charity said the children had really enjoyed meeting their special guest, who was wearing traditional Gambian dress.

Report by Eleanor Harris

"The pupils were fascinated to see what is being done in Gambia and how the children live out there," he added.